McLOUGHLIN BROS., PUBLISHERS, NEW YORK.

There was a young person named VIC, who eat till she made herself sick ;
So they fed her on gruel, which was not very cruel, but not at all tasty or thick.

There was a young lady named BESS, who was constantly making a mess ;
She dirtied her clothes, and blackened her nose, and tore a large hole in her dress.

There was a young person named JULIA, whose tastes were so very peculiar ;
That she eat little gnats, and made puddings with rats, which did'nt agree with Miss Julia.

There was a young lady named GRACE, who actually ran in a race ;
But she tumbled down flat, and spoiled her best hat, besides getting scratched in the face.

There was a young lady named LOU, who burst a large hole in her shoe ;
Then out came her stocking, which really was shocking, but what in the world could she do ?

There was a young lady named JANE, whose face was distorted with pain ;
When they said, "You might die!" She answered, "Not I!" But I'll never eat candy again.

There was a young lady named ROSE, who walked on the tips of her toes;
When she went to a ball she astonished them all, and frightened away all her beaux.

There was a young lady named RUTH, who never could tell you the truth;
When they wanted to cure it, she wouldn't endure it, and said it was only her youth.
